

MONASTERIUM-CONSORTIUM

The virtual archive is borne by nearly 60 European institutes operating in the archival and scientific sector. The “International Centre for Archival Research” (ICARUS) provides a central institutional platform and is situated in Vienna.

www.icar-us.eu

© Slovenský národný archív,
Bela IV. 1255 august 20

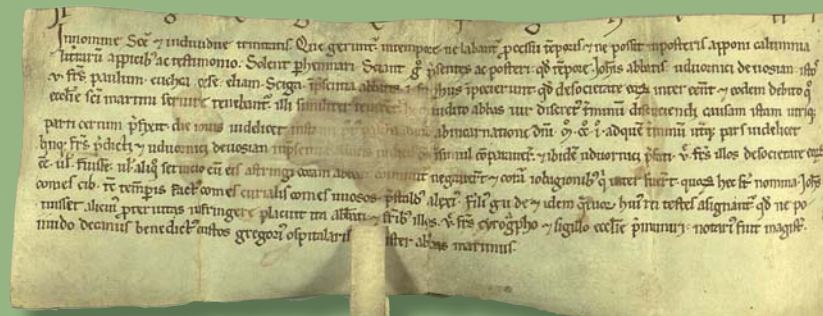

CONTACT AND FURTHER INFORMATION:

www.monasterium.net

ICARUS

International Centre for Archival Research
Spengergasse 56/6
A-1050 Wien
Tel./Fax: + 43 (0) 1 / 545 0989
Email: info@monasterium.net

© Pannonhalmi Bencés Főapátság, János
pannonhegyi szentmártoni apát 1201 march 29

bm:uk

WWW.MONASTERIUM.NET

© Österreichisches Staatsarchiv,
Friedrich IV. 1446 february 15

MONASTERIUM.NET is Europe's virtual primary source archive. More than 100.000 primary sources are available online. Nearly 60 institutes from 10 European states enrich the collective, steadily growing inventory of medieval and early modern period charters.

MONASTERIUM.NET – WITHOUT BOUNDARIES

Old documents meet state of the art technology: information from the past are made accessible to the public with international norms in a new, innovative way.

Summaries (Regesten), scientific reports and secondary literature complete the professional preparation of the documents.

Cross linking with other kinds of sources (i.e. manuscripts on www.manuscriptorium.com) offers new aspects and a new research approach.

An established network with several European archives, libraries and scientific institutions supply a continuous improvement and an extension of the inventory.

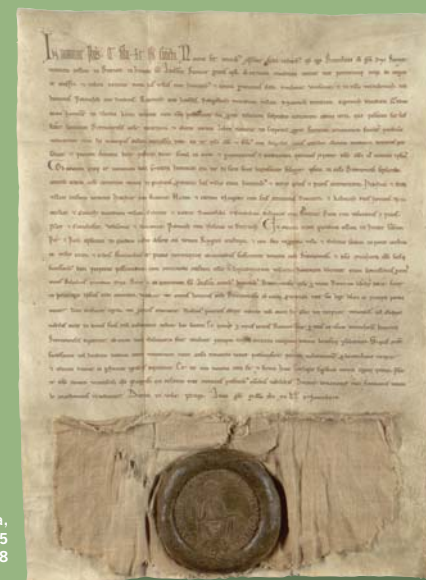

MONASTERIUM.NET – TRANSBOUNDARY

Time and space are irrelevant: the documents are accessible free of charge around the clock in a rapid, unbureaucratic way – from anywhere in the world.

In many cases cost- and time-intensive travels to archives at different places are no longer necessary.

The available material, that is constantly supplemented, overcomes national and regional borders.

Single historical documents are detached from their regional limited context so that they can be researched in a larger framework.

© Národní archiv Praha,
Břetislav [I.] 1045
october 18

MONASTERIUM.NET – BOUNDLESS

Closed doors are opened: primary sources which were not accessible to the public are now available to everyone, irrespective of the level of education and the social background.

Teaching, research and culture benefit from the digital accessibility of historical documents.

Instruction becomes more authentic and vivid – e.g. students can experience languages such as Latin or complement their knowledge of regional geography.

© Stiftsarchiv Altenburg,
Bonifaz VIII. 1300

The networking of primary sources opens up new unforeseen ways and perspectives of exploring the European history – local, regional and transnational.

The preoccupation with the conjoint European history assists in overcoming any boundaries and contributes to an increased awareness of the necessity for an intercultural dialogue.