

Venue: Trinity College Dublin
College Green, Dublin 2
Ireland

Time: June 25-26, 2013

Preliminary programme

ICARUS-Meeting #11

Tuesday, 25 June 2013

- 10:30 (Planned – detailed information tba) Guided tour: The National Archives of Ireland
- 13:30 – 15:00 General Assembly
- 15:00 – 15:30 Coffee break
- 15:30 – 17:30 Work Groups:
- Monasterium/Didactics
 - Population Registers
 - World War I
 - Cadastral Maps
- 18:30 – 20:00 Soccer
- 20:30 Informal dinner

Wednesday, 26 June 2013

- 09:00 – 12:00 Plenum
1. Presentation of the National Archives of Ireland
 2. New members' introduction
 3. Project Market
 4. Work Group reports
- 12:00 – 13:30 Lunch break
- 13:30 – 15:00 „Inspire your audience – How to make your archive pop into society's view“
Soft skill training course lead by the Institute for Quality and Human Resource Development (HR)

No doubt, archives are THE institutions safeguarding and documenting our rich and unique heritage – their information and material connects society's present to the past.

Why is it though that only few people seem to know of those archival holdings or even more, feel uncertain on how to access this knowledge?

One reason might certainly be that archives themselves need to actively join into modern cultural dynamics and ensure making their holdings, their ongoing activities (such as the APEX project) ie their dense interweaving into society's disposition visibly to the general public. Raising this awareness within the public conscious is THE essential aim in order to open archives up to new user spheres and increase the archive's user numbers.

This training course by the IQ will give archivists the chance to increase their soft skills and use their expertise to their advantage within cultural management and leadership strategies.

How to transfer a variety of relevant topics such as, for example,

- encouraging engagement with the public,
- promoting user friendly services and
- having citizens actively and easily benefit from archival institutions and their expertise into captivating presentations will be the main focus of this training course.

- 15:00 – 16:00 ENArC-Meeting (ENArC partners only)

APEX conference: Building infrastructures for archives in a digital world

- Date: 26 – 28 June 2013
Venue: Trinity College Dublin, College Green, Dublin 2
(Davis Theatre, Emmet Theatre, Ui Chadhain Theatre)
Participation: free of charge
Conference language: English

Click >>> here for the detailed programme.