10th Digitale Bibliothek: "Back (and) to the future"

The Digitale Bibliothek ("Digital Library") conferences at the University of Graz, Austria, are a joint platform for the exchange of experience on new developments in the field of knowledge presentation and preservation in libraries, museums, archives and research institutions.

It's 10th edition will welcome speakers and participants from previous conferences to, first of all, celebrate; but also share their experiences interacting with the conferences themes

The main topics of the conference will be:

- Technology: Established and cutting edge (e.g. AI, machine learning, ...)
- Networks: Cooperations, partnerships, working together nowadays
- Sustainability: How do we preserve knowledge? What happens to knowledge/know-how that is not digitally available? Can knowledge be "secured", is it verifiable? New ways of knowledge transfer? New ways for GLAM institutions? Choosing which knowledge to preserve and process?

The conference will take place at Graz University on 28-29 November 2024. The submission deadline is 31 May 2024.

New website for the common European data space for cultural heritage

Europeana Foundation recently published a new webpage for the common European data space for cultural heritage. It offers an attractive overview of the activities taking place across the data space - numbers and figures, partners and organisations behind it, projects which support it and its principal products, developed by the Europeana Initiative. As the data space grows and evolves, the dedicated webpage will continue to be enriched - so stay tuned for fresh updates!
